FRANKFORT FACES ANOTHER ROAD LAW SUIT NOW

The township of Frankfort is facing another law suit instituted by Henry W. Voss for the balance due for building a hard road east of Mokena last year. The suit is for $2000 and is to come up the third Monday in September. Attorney A. H. Krusemark is the counsel for the plaintiff.

DEIST-OETTER NUPITALS

Miss Pearl Deist and Conrad Oetter were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deist, August 8th. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by the bride's sister, Mrs. Irving Robertson of Joliet. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Martin of the Frankfort Methodist church. There were no attendants. The bride wore a tailored tulle suit of blue and hat to match. The costume was completed by a corsage bouquet of red roses. A wedding dinner was served to about forty relatives at 6 o'clock. The tables were decorated with red roses. Misses Olive and Grace Kohlhaugen were waitresses.

KICKED BY HORSE

Dr. W. V. Hedges received a hurry call Saturday morning to the Carl Schultz farm near Tinley Park to attend Mr. Schultz who had been kicked in the stomach by a horse. Mr. Schultz was knocked senseless by the kick, but did not appear to have suffered any internal injuries.

AUTO PRICES TO ADVANCE

Announcement has been made by some of the local garage men that the prices on all automobiles will shortly advance. The H. M. G. dealers have just closed a deal with the Willys Knight plant for two touring cars. These dealers have had a big demand for cars all summer and have had some heavy sales.

BEARS COME TO CAMP

Clarence Folkers who is with an office training camp in the Stone National Park writes some interesting news about the life in camp. Bears often come up to the tent door. Mr. Folkers in company with other men has made a bicycle trip thru the Park and writes that the scenery is wonderful. He has been enjoying the camp life very much.

FORMERS PASTORS WIFE UNDERGOES OPERATION

Mrs. W. H. Ake, wife of the former pastor of the Frankfort Methodist church underwent a serious operation for the removal of a cancer from her face. She is in the Wesley hospital, Chicago. The Rev. Ake is now located at Blue Island. The many friends of Mrs. Ake feel very sorry for her and hope for a speedy recovery.

BUILDING BIG SIDE TRACK

The M. C. railroad has had a steam shovel and a force of men engaged the past week grading east of town for the road bed of a new side track which they expect to build this fall. The railroad has a heavy traffic and is in need of more side track room here.

HOME IMPROVEMENT MEETS

The Frankfort Home Improvement Club met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Jennie Paff. The program consisted of entertainment numbers. As this was the annual meeting an election of officers was held.

PASS ANNUAL BUDGET

The city fathers of Frankfort have passed the annual tax levy for the ensuing year. The tax levied requires that over $4,000 be raised for village taxes.

TINLEY PARK BOY INJURED CRANK- ING GAS ENGINE

Wm. Steckman who has been in the employ of John Hartman during vacation met with a quite serious accident the forepart of the week while cranking a gasoline engine. As no one saw the accident it is not known just exactly how the accident happened, but it is thought that while cranking the engine he did not pull the crank handle off quick with the result that the handle flew of the wheel and struck him on the arm and glanced off and struck him in the face knocking out eight teeth and cutting his face quite badly. He is under the doctor's care now.

BALL GAME RESULTS IN TIE

The ball game Sunday between New Lenox and the Tinley Park Bull Frogs was a hotly contested game and wound up with 12 innings. In the ninth inning the score was tied and a 12 inning game was played. The score stood 13 to 14 in favor of Tinley Park when the game ended.

All the fans are anxiously looking forward for next Sunday when the much talked of game with Orland and Tinley Park have crack teams a highly interesting game is looked for. Hundreds of fans from all over the surrounding countryside are expected to turn out to this game.

FALSE FIRE ALARM

Sunday evening a big fire was seen in the direction of the Ernest Sickman farm and the alarm spread that Mr. Sickman's barn was on fire. A large number of Tinley Park people hastened out to fight the fire, but upon their arrival found that only a large pile of dried weeds were being burned.

BIG PICNIC FOR NEXT SUN.

J. R. BENTLEY OF NEW LENOX IS IN RACE AGAIN

James R. Bentley of New Lenox is in the race again for renomination to the office of representative and will have a strong support in this section of the county. Mr. Bentley has made a clean record and his friends feel that he should be returned for another term.

CAMP MEETING PRES. IS DEAD

Theodore Clark, of Joliet, president of the New Lenox Camp Meeting Association died Tuesday morning at his home in Joliet. This makes the second death of Camp Meeting presidents on the eve of the encampment within a year. Last year Mr. Elliott of Wilmington, died on the eve of the encampment. Mr. Clark was quite well known to New Lenox residents.

AUTO VICTIMS IMPROVING

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Button who were recently run over by an auto on the highway in front of the Button farm west of New Lenox, are improving nicely. Mr. Button had a leg broken in the accident and is confined in the Silver cross hospital at Joliet. Mrs. Button had her arm very badly cut and was otherwise quite badly bruised. She is obliged to take treatments every day for the wound.

EXHIBITS SHEEP

Fred Francis exhibited some of his fancy sheep at the Kankakee fair and captured many blue ribbons. This week he has gone to Springfield where he is exhibiting 38 head of sheep at the state fair.

CARNIVAL IS SUCCESS

The Carnival which was recently given by the Ladies of the Grace Episcopal church was a decided success in every way.

The Misses Helen and Alice Francis who have been with the Servis touring party, have reached Denver, Colorado and are stopping off a few days to visit their brother Walter. They had a grand trip to Southern Alaska and from there they went by steamer down the Pacific coast. One of the big features of the trip was climbing Mount Rainier in Washington. The party was accompanied with the beautiful scenery.

Five horses belonging to Fred Francis were killed on the Wabash bridge near the Harry Storms farm about 1:30 o'clock Thursday morning. The horses had got onto the tracks thru a gate which had been blown open by the wind. This gate belongs to the Wabash railroad and it is said this gate has been in bad shape for sometime. After the horses got onto the tracks they became frightened at an approaching train and ran ahead of the train onto the bridge and becoming caught in the opening between the ties they were trapped and when the train struck them the 3 of the horses were killed outright and 2 so badly crippled that they had to be shot. Mr. Francis has now got the matter in the hands of his attorneys Anderson and Murphy of Joliet. The loss is placed at $1,000.00.

Mr. Frank Blunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hurie have been recent guests at the J. R. Bentley home.

The Missionary Society of the M. E. church was entertained at the home of Mrs. J. R. Bentley last Saturday afternoon. About thirty guests were present.

Miss Mabel Oram is attending the State Fair School at Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Oram attended the fair at Kankakee Wednesday.

Miss Winifred Delaney of Joliet is a guest at E. J. McLaughlin's.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Pease spent a few days last week with their daughter Laura on the old farm home.

FRANKFORT

A company of Marteson friends recently held a surprise farewell party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Fink at their home in Frankfort just before they moved to New Lenox. The evening was much enjoyed with music and games. Refreshments were served. The Frankfort friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fink regretted to see them leave as they were a highly respected family. They lived here for many years. While living here Mr. Fink ran the grain elevator on the E. J. & E. road. Since moving to New Lenox he has entered the same business and has purchased a beautiful home there.

CLIFFORD S. RAYMOND

As chief editorial writer of the Chicago Tribune many thousands of people have read "Cliff" Raymond who do not know his name. To thousands of others he is known for his writings on astronomy, mathematics and some other sciences. Many thousands of others know him for some exceptionally brilliant short stories which have appeared in the magazines. The few novels he has written are best exemplified in "The Mystery of Hartley House," a remarkable story totally different from anything you have ever read. Will appear as a serial in this paper.

DO NOT MISS IT!

MOKENA HOME IMPROVEMENT CLUB DEDICATES COMMUNITY BAND STAND; OTHER INTERESTING HAPPENINGS

One of the most important community affairs which has taken place in Mokena for many a day was the dedication of the community band stand in the village park last Friday night. The Rev. W. J. Kennitz of the local Immanuel Lutheran church gave an impressive dedication address in which he outlined the history of the Mokena Home Improvement Club showing how the women banded together to beautify not only their homes, but the community as well, for it was thru the instrumentality of the Club that the band stand and weekly band concerts was made possible. The Mokena band is not to be forgotten as they have also shown a very active interest in the project. The Rev. Mr. Kennitz also gave a very nice talk on the charm of music in all the various times of gaiety or sorrow in life. The Rev. Wm. Kreis, pastor of the St. John Evangelical church gave a very interesting talk on the various business people of the town. He also touched on the active community spirit.

The band furnished the music for the evening which was much enjoyed. Refreshments were sold on the grounds and about $41 were realized from the sales of same.

The Public Service Company also showed a real helping community spirit by donating free electric light for lighting the band stand and the park too. The only condition being that the promoters of the project furnish the necessary poles and wire which was done. The wiring was done by C. Sippel. Another feature that must not be overlooked is the generosity of the local school board in donating some old school benches which were lying idle in the school basement. James Cooper of the local school board was instrumental in getting the board to make the donation. In all everyone has taken a live interest in this commendable undertaking. This is the kind of community spirit that counts for something. The dedication services were quite largely attended.

STOLEN CAR IS RECOVERED

Howard Gorham, a former Mokena resident, now living in Joliet recently had his car stolen from his garage across the street from his home. The thieves took the garage door off its hinges and removed the car without anyone hearing or seeing them. Mr. Gorham notified the police and also offered a $50 reward for the return of the car. Last week Mr. Gorham received word thru the sheriff's office that his auto had been located at Crown Point, Indiana. According to the story told by the Indiana authorities, two young fellows became stalled with the car alongside a highway near the city after they had given the car such a hard handling that many of the car's parts were broken and they could not proceed any further. The thieves then stripped the car of the tools and left the car. A woman living near by saw the car and notified the authorities who later notified Mr. Gorham. The car was brought to Joliet. About a hundred dollars worth of damage was done to the car. No trace of the car has been found.

R. I. ENGINE NEARLY WRECKED

A freight engine on the Rock Island had a narrow escape from being wrecked Sunday. While the train was running about 30 miles an hour a rod broke off and the loose end in swinging around knocked off the blowoff valve causing all the steam and water to escape from the boiler. The accident occurred opposite from the cattle yards in the east end of the village. The milk train pushed the stalled train in a side track and the disabled engine was taken to the Blue Island shops for repairs.

CLASS HOLDS PICNIC

The I. T. Class of the St. John Evangelical Sunday school held a picnic at the Cappel woods on Saturday, August 7. A wienie roast was one of the features of the day. This class is one of the most recently organized classes in the Sunday School and is progressing in both social and beneficial activities. The class officers are as follows: President, Florence Cooper. Vice President, Florence Shevlin. Secretary, Marcia Liess. Treasurer, Hazel Klose. Teacher, Mrs. H. F. Woodrich.

AUTO CLUB HOLDS PICNIC HERE

The Blue Island Automobile Club held a picnic Sunday at the Cappel Grove south of Mokena and about five hundred members of the club and their friends attended the picnic. The picnickers brought their own and well filled picnic baskets. After the feed the afternoon was devoted to dancing. Many of the guests stayed until late in the evening and enjoyed a fine time.

Mrs. Albert Hodell was taken very ill suddenly, Wednesday.

TO ENTERTAIN CLUB

Mrs. Charles Reynolds is to entertain the Mokena Home Improvement Club on August 26th. The topic to be discussed is "Worth of a Woman's Time." (A) Comparison of wages, housewife vs. business woman. (B) Is it more or less economical to use home made products (food, clothing, etc) or to buy the ready made article (Demonstrate.) Compare cost of time and labor of home made loaf of bread also cake, cookies, canned fruit, vegetables, also clothing. The roll call is to consist of the following: "What value has the club for me."

HENTSCH & HELLMUTH HANDLE NEW TRACTOR IN 10 TWPS.

Hentsch & Hellmuth have closed a contract with the J. I. Case Plow Manufacturing Company of Racine, Wisconsin for the agency of the Wallis tractor and the J. I. Case plows. They have the agency for ten townships as follows:

Green Garden, Frankfort, New Lenox, Manhattan, Washington, Peotone, Will, Crete, Monee and Wilmington. Hentsch & Hellmuth have a Wallis tractor on exhibition now. They will hold demonstrations soon.

PASTOR DOES NOT ACCEPT CALL

The Rev. W. J. Kennitz, pastor of the local Immanuel Lutheran church has not accepted the call he recently received from the Lutheran church at Hampshire and Burlington, Ill.

The proposition was laid before the local congregation and the members voted unanimously that the Rev. Mr. Kennitz be retained as their pastor. The work in the vineyard of the Lord will go on as before. Sunday school at 9:15 a. m., in the English language and divine services at 10 a. m. in the German language.

ENTERTAINS LADIES AID

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church was entertained last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Fred Hunter. There was a very good attendance and a pleasing program was carried out. The September meeting is to be held in the village park, the weather permitting. Mrs. Fred Foss and Mrs. Albert Braun will entertain. In case of rain the meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Braun.

CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Elizabeth Cappel has passed her 70th birthday and in honor of the event all of her children and all of their families held a family picnic in the woods last Sunday. About forty guests were present.

MAY ORGANIZE BOY SCOUTS

A movement has been growing of late in favor of organizing the Boy Scouts. Before he left on his trip to England, Mr. Wm. Clark had the boys meet at his home. He expects to get the boys together and organize upon his return.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC SAT.

The Sunday School of the St. John Evangelical church will hold its annual Sunday School picnic in the village park on Saturday afternoon of this week.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our thanks to all who so kindly assisted us at the time of the fire.

ALBERT HELLMUTH.

MRS. FRICK.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church will hold a chicken supper at the village park on Friday evening, September 2nd. The supper is to be served cafeteria style.

S. J. Eakle, former Mokena school principal now located at Poplar Grove, expects to be in Mokena for a few days this week or the forepart of next week.

I then jotted down on a scratch pad this memorandum:

"The young woman representing herself as Mrs. Bashford and now established in my uncle's house is one or all of the following persons:

- "1. Uncle Bash's widow.
- "2. An impostor.
- "3. A spy of some sort, pursued by secret agents.
- "4. Violet Dewing, an actress.
- "5. The most interesting and the loveliest and most charming girl in the world."

The following day nothing of importance happened, though Alice and Mrs. Farnsworth again spent the morning in the woodland, presumably studying Searles' play. My thoughts galloped through my head in a definite formula: "If she is not my aunt—" "If she is an impostor—" "If she is a spy playing a deep game in the seclusion of Barton—" "If she is the actress Searles is seeking—" At any rate, I would respect her wish to play the game through; the dangers of carrying the story-book idea to one of half a dozen possible conclusions were not inconsiderable, but I was resolved that she should finish the tale in her own fashion.

If I had expected Searles and his play to be introduced into the table-talk, I was doomed to disappointment. A dozen times I smothered an impulse to tell Alice and Mrs. Farnsworth I had watched them in the woodland and of Searles' long search for the ideal of his "Lady Larkspur," but I was afraid to risk their displeasure. They enjoyed walking in the wood, they said, and when I charged them with selfishness in not taking me along, Alice immediately suggested a tramp later in the afternoon.

"I'll send you away after luncheon—I have loads of letters to write, but by four o'clock I'll be keen for the woods again."

"Letters to all my good fairies," she laughed when I went for her; "and you mustn't look at the addresses!" She suggested that we walk to the village, as she liked to post her letters herself. We went through the woods where I had seen her the day before.

"Constance and I were here this morning," she said when we reached the big boulder. "Let me see; I think I'll try a little trick to test the hand of fate. Give me those letters, please. If this falls with address up, I'll mail it," and she chose one and handed me the others; "If the flap side turns up, I'll destroy it."

She sent it spinning into the air. A branch caught and held it an instant, then it fell, turning over and over, and lay straight on edge against a weed.

"No decision!" I cried. "It's an exact perpendicular."

She knelt beside it, pondering. "I think it leans just a trifle to the address side," she announced. "Therefore you may return it to your pocket and it goes into the post office."

"These letters, would probably answer a lot of questions for me if I dared run away with them," I suggested.

"The thought does you no credit, sir. You promised not to meddle, but just to let things take their course, and I must say that you are constantly improving. At times you grow suspicious—yes, you know you do—but, take it all in all, you do very well."

At the post office she dropped all the letters but one into the chute. "It really did fall a little to the address side!" she questioned.

I gave my judgment that the letter stood straight on edge, inclining neither way.

"If my life hung in the balance, I should certainly not act where fate had been so timid."

"Suppose," said Alice musingly, "I were to tell you that if I mail this letter the effect will be to detain me in America for some time; if I don't send it, I shall have to write another that will mean that I shall go very soon. If I stay on at Barton instead of going home to take up my little part again for England in the war, it will be an act of selfishness—just some more of my foolishness, more of the make-believe life that Constance and I have been living here."

"I want you to stay," I said earnestly, taking the letter. "Let me be your fate in this—in everything that affects your life forever."

She walked quickly to the door, and I dropped the letter into the chute and hurried after her.

"You didn't turn round," I said as we started down the street. "For all you know, I've got the letter in my pocket."

"Oh, I'm not a bit frightened! It would be just as interesting one way as another."

"But I want you to stay forever," I declared as we waited on the curb for a truck to pass.

"The remark is almost impertinent," she answered, "when I've known you only seven days."

"They've been wonderful days. It really makes no difference about letters or your duties elsewhere. Where you go I shall certainly follow; that's something I should like to have understood here and now."

Loitering along the beach on our way home, I was guiltily conscious that I was making love rather ardently to a lady who had introduced herself to me as my uncle's widow. The sensation was, on the whole, very agreeable. . . .

"Mr. Torrence and Mr. Raynor," Antoine announced as we were leaving the dinner-table.

"Mr. Raynor?" asked Alice. "Who, pray, is Mr. Raynor?"

Their arrival together chilled me, a chill increased by Torrence's frosty greeting as he gripped my hand angrily and hissed in my ear:

"You've deceived me about this whole business! I suggest that you leave the room."

I was walking toward the door when Mrs. Farnsworth protested.

"You are not going? Alice, there is no reason why Mr. Singleton should leave us."

"Of course he is not going," said Alice. "She was established at ease in a wicker rocker, unconcernedly playing the ostrich-plume fan."

"There may be matters—" began Torrence.

"Oh, nothing that Bob can't hear!" Alice declared.

"Very well," muttered Torrence frowning his complete disapproval.

He fidgeted for a moment and tried to catch Raynor's eye, but Raynor's face expressed amusement. I found myself liking Raynor very much.

"Mr. Raynor told me that he wished to speak to Mrs. Bashford privately," said Torrence. "If he's satisfied, I'm sure I have no objection to Mr. Singleton's remaining. I regret that my own duty is a disagreeable one."

"Really!" murmured Alice with nicely shaded impudence.

"I am convinced, beyond any question," said Torrence sharply, "that "Really!" murmured Alice.

you are not the widow of the late Raymond B. Bashford!"

"That statement," said Alice without ceasing the languid flutter of the fan, "is correct—quite correct."

"Certainly. It is entirely true," affirmed Mrs. Farnsworth.

"And your coming here as you did is, if you will pardon my frankness, susceptible of very disagreeable constructions. It is my painful duty—"

He choked upon his duty until Raynor spoke, smiling broadly.

"I find my duty really a privilege," he said. "Not only are you not Mrs. Bashford," he went on with the utmost good humor, "but you are a very different person. I should explain that I represent the American state department, and that our government has been asked by the British embassy to find you and deliver a certain message to you."

"Oh, papa wants me to come home!" cried Alice. "It's droll, Constance, that papa should have thought of making an affair of state of us. Dear papa will always indulge me just so far, and then he becomes alarmed."

"He's certainly alarmed now!" laughed Raynor. "But the ambassador has warned us to be most tactful and circumspect. You may not know that Sir Arnold Seabring is on his way to this country on a confidential mission. That, of course, is not for publication."

"Sir Arnold Seabring?" gasped Torrence.

"The father of the Honorable Miss Seabring," replied Raynor with an elucidating nod toward Alice.

"But how—" I began.

"Mrs. Bashford, the widow of your uncle, is the Honorable Miss Seabring's aunt. Is that quite correct?"

"It is all true," said Alice. "I am a fraud, an impostor. You might go on and say that Mrs. Farnsworth is the wife of Sir Cecil Arrowsmith. But all the guilt is mine. It was my idea to come here and play a little, because I knew Aunt Alice wouldn't mind. She knew just what I meant to do; really she did, Mr. Torrence! In fact, I have her written permission to use the house; which I should have shown you if we had got in a pinch. But it seemed so much more fun just to let matters take their course. It's a pet theory of mine that life is a dull affair unless we trust to luck a little. After my brother's death I was very unhappy and had gone out East to visit Aunt Alice, who is a great roamer. I thought it would be nice to stop here on the way home, just for a lark, without telling papa, who was frantically cabling me to hurry back to England. This isn't the first time I've played hide-and-seek with my family. I was always doing that as a child; and if it hadn't been for my general waywardness I should never have known you, Constance. Why, I shouldn't have known you, gentlemen! It has all been so delightful!"

This naive confession amused Raynor greatly, but Torrence was seeing nothing in it but a dangerous escapade.

"In the name of the Bainbridge Trust company, I must notify you," he began, "that by representing yourself as another person, entering into possession of a large property—"

"But we've been paying all our own expenses; we haven't taken any money from you," pleaded Alice.

"Of course you wouldn't do such a thing," affirmed Raynor. "My instructions are to give you any sum of money you ask. In fact, the government of the United States is instructed to assume full responsibility for you until your father arrives."

"May I go on and clarify matters for these gentlemen, for Mr. Torrence at least is entitled to a full explanation?"

"Constance," said Alice, turning with a little shrug to her friend, "we have been caught! Our story is being spoiled for us. Please go on, Mr. Raynor. Just what does the American state department have to say about us?"

"That you are endowed with a very unusual personality," continued Raynor, his eyes twinkling. "You are not at all content to remain in that station of life to which you were born; you like playing at being all sorts of other persons. Once, so your friend the ambassador confided to me, you ran away and followed a band of gypsies, which must have been when you were a very little girl."

"I was seven," said Alice, "and the gypsies were nice to me."

"And then you showed talent for the stage—"

"A dreadful revelation!" she exclaimed.

"But you don't know that it was really your father who managed to have Mrs. Farnsworth, one of the most distinguished actresses in England, take charge of you."

"No! Alice never knew that!" said Mrs. Farnsworth, laughing. "I was her chaperon as well as her preceptor, but Alice's father knew that if Alice found it out it would spoil the adventure for her. Alice must do things her own way."

"You are a fraud," said Alice, "but I always suspected you a little."

"Speaking of the stage," resumed Raynor, "it is also a part of my instructions that the Honorable Miss Seabring shall be discouraged from any further adventure in that direction; she's far too talented; there's danger of her becoming a great luminary. In other words, she is not to grace the boards again as Violet Dewing."

Alice's brow clouded, and she turned to me. "That was settled when you mailed that letter for me. It was to make an appointment with an American playwright who wants me to appear in a most adorable comedy."

Trace Pedigree for Centuries.

Speaking of old families and family trees, English and Americans who pride themselves on ancestry have reason to envy the Arabs, many of whom can trace their family line back through many centuries by means of authentic documents. Prof. Talcott Williams, an American who was born and spent his youth in Turkey and has traveled much since in oriental countries, says the descendants of Mohammed are numerous all over the Moslem world—in Arabia, Somaliland and East Africa—and that they prove their line by these records, which they value highly. There are also many descendants of Abu Bekr, the immediate successor of Mohammed. The leading Moslem family in Jerusalem are the Khaldi, descendants of Kalked, who conquered Syria 1,300 years ago and whose descendants have kept their genealogical records intact for all that period.

Sound Advice.

Some young fellows think that it is "smart," "clever," and a sign of bravery to drive near the edge of a precipice; to spend what cash they have freely; and to be a good fellow and take the risk someone else urges upon them. This is the sign of inexperience and lack of real business knowledge and experience. Play safe. Keep clean. Be strong. Be true, and you will never regret it.—Exchange.

THE PARIS OF CHINA

Temple of the Five Hundred Gods, Canton.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

ANTON is the Paris and Bunker Hill of China.

The Chinese say that he who has not lived in Canton knows not luxury. Equally true is it that the American of lowliest estate who has not seen Canton knows not poverty. In contrast to ancient temples, and palatial homes surrounded with park-like gardens, are the beggars at their gates, covered with sores and whining for a pittance; the leaden-eyed porters, straining under their burden of humanity or baggage; women haggling for a pigeon-egg-sized lump of bean curd, half a dozen peanuts, a dozen roasted beans, or a strip of meat the size of a rasher of bacon as a special luxury for the family dinner.

A five and ten-cent store would be a Tiffany's for many well-to-do Canton families. The cent, now a sort of war tax annoyance to us, would have to be subdivided for the Chinaman. His smallest coin, the cash, normally worth one-twentieth of an American cent, was too large in some places, and bamboo tokens are recognized by tradesmen as worth half a cash.

Yet there is luxury, expressed not only in homes, commerce, and business structures, but in products which make Canton the art center of China. Its lacquer and sandalwood articles are unique, its ivory carving unsurpassed, its pottery, gem setting, and fans, from the palm leaves we buy for a few pennies to the ivory-handled feather ones—the tourist bargains for at $25 or $35, are world famous.

Revolutionary Center of China.

Patriotically Canton has several points of contact with the American. Most likely the firecrackers which disturbed our early-morning slumbers on the Fourth of July came from there, as well as the fan we carried to the community demonstration later. Canton was the birthplace of the revolution in 1911 that ended the Manchu dynasty, and has been the storm center of other revolutionary activities since.

Except for a few newer streets, it still is true that Canton is a "city of a million without a wheel or a beast of burden." Strangely ancient in some respects, Canton long has practiced some of the expedients which are being urged as experiments in western lands.

So far as her business district is concerned, the city is thoroughly "zoned." The shopper may find practically all the city has to offer in wood carving on one street, in silks and embroideries on another, in jewels and precious stones on another. During the coal shortage in our eastern states in recent winters, efforts were made to do cooking at central kitchens and serve food "ready to eat" at homes in the neighborhood. Long has the fuel shortage been acute in Canton, driving the housewife to chaff, twigs, litter, for her cooking, and making cooking and vending on the streets a recourse of the poor rather than a fad with the rich. The Chinese "hot dog man" has a greater variety, but smaller portions, than our own, and he is not to be recommended from the standpoint of sanitation.

Fighting the Plague.

Human life inevitably becomes cheaper in the midst of congestion, suffering and poverty. Early efforts to fight the bubonic plague were gravely met with the argument that there were too many mouths to feed, anyway, in Canton, and the plague, like the typhoons, were providential for those who escaped.

Humane science finally won the day, and the tin boxes on street corners are not to be mistaken for trash receptacles. They are for dead rats, which are collected and burned. The tornadoes wreak peculiar havoc because of the peculiar dwelling place of some 125,000 of Canton's inhabitants—on houseboats. These boat dwellers, the Tan-min, are social pariahs. Their women formerly furnished the "singing girls" on the "flower boats," floating bannets of the underworld, which were burned several years ago. Their men engage in the river traffic that is an essential feature of Canton's commercial life.

The city is 70 miles up the Pearl river from the sea. Naming the kinds of junks that ply about Canton requires as much knowledge as picking the makes of automobiles that spin along Riverside drive or Michigan avenue. The "slipper boats" are recognizable because of a striking resemblance to their European-given nickname; the "Canton sampans" are numerous; the two-masted passenger junks are the Canton-Hongkong ferries, but the most curious of the many other kinds, perhaps, are the che-ling, operated by Chinamen stepping on a treadmill in the rear. These were invented by an European who sensed that man power is the cheapest and most plentiful to be had in China—land where labor-utilizing rather than labor-saving devices pique the inventor.

The gutters are in the middle of the street, in Canton. The divers down by the water front go in feet first. The Canton bon-bon is pit-tan, eggs preserved in rice hulls, ashes and lime. If a man has a beautiful yard or garden, he hides it by a high wall; but once the visitor breaks through this privacy, in company with a trusted guide, he may find himself not only on the premises but conducted through an exclusive home as if it were a public building, and the household members go serenely about their own affairs while they, too, are described and explained by the cordial friend. Here is a hint of the origin of the Chinatown tours in our great cities.

Temples and Legends.

If the struggle for existence suggests materialism, one need only visit the temples in Canton, to glimpse the delicate, subtle, and daring imagination of the seemingly literal, cautious Chinaman. The "Flowery Pagoda," with the copper pillar topped by a golden ball, is where a famed Indian missionary once spent a night, and so fragrant was his presence that the tower still is free from mosquitoes. To the "Five Fairies Temple" once came five genii, wearing coats of different colors and riding goats of different colors. Each fairy brought a stalk of grain, which was given to the people with the benediction "Dwell here in perpetual peace, and never know famine." The fairies departed, but their steeds turned to stone, and remain to this day in the temple. A more mechanical curiosity is the tower where time is measured by water dripping from four copper vessels, arranged at different levels.

The hills about are famed no less for their legends than for the terraces where the ginger root is grown that is preserved by the Cantonese. One peak is crowned by a rock that sways when spoken to in angry tones; there is a stream where some Oriental Enoch drank a potion of iris leaves and, becoming immortal, was wafted away to heaven.

There is a chamber of commerce at Canton, but the characteristic industrial bodies are the guilds, 72 in number, iron bound, self-perpetuating organizations, of great power both economically and politically. The Chinese merchant and artisan is an apt example of the tremendous forces of inertia, or precedent, if you like, in Chinese life. He carves, brews, or sells gold foil, not only because his father or grandfather did, but because his remote ancestors, when Columbus sailed westward or Marco Polo toured east, did that very thing in just that way.

Quality, not variety, is the merit he seeks, and the guilds define the exact sphere of their members minutely. There is the Guild of Dealers in Cloth Interwoven with Metal Threads of Various Colors, the Guild of Dealers in Kerosene Lamps, the Guild of Dealers in Hand-Reeled Silk, and the Guild of Dealers in Liquor Brewed from Rice.

The honesty of the Chinese merchant is proverbial. In Canton lived Hon Qua, a millionaire, who furnished a conspicuous example of this quality. When a firm which owed large sums to foreigners became bankrupt, Hon Qua headed a list of Canton business men who made good the debt, on the ground that Chinese credit must not be tarnished.

OATS BEST CROP

Statistics Show Advantages Over Corn Growing.

On Comparatively Cheap Land in Western Canada Farmers Get Record Yields—Cost Per Acre Much Less Than Corn.

How much more does it cost to grow an acre of corn than to grow an acre of oats? To get a proper comparison it is necessary to take an illustration from a farm on which both crops are grown successfully. An example has just been brought to the writer's attention of the comparative cost of growing corn and oats on a Minnesota farm. It is furnished by Albert Inner, a well-known farmer in Cottonwood county, Minn., in an article which appeared in the Cottonwood Citizen.

Mr. Inner says: "I had a curiosity to know how much it would cost to raise an acre of oats and corn. To find out I kept account, during the year, of the time required and the cash expended to grow the above mentioned crops." His figures show that it cost him $31.49 to grow an acre of corn and $18.13 to grow an acre of oats, or a difference of $13.00 an acre in favor of oats.

Provided the respective crop yields are not altogether out of proportion to the cost of growing the crop, this seems to be a good argument in favor of growing oats. But to grow oats successfully it is not necessary to use $150 or $200 land. In western Canada some of the best oat-growing land in the world can be bought for about $20 an acre. On this land good yields and a high quality of grain is obtainable.

Fifty to sixty bushels to the acre in properly prepared land is a fair average yield for oats in western Canada in a normal season but yields of up to 100 bushels, and even more, to the acre have been frequent in good years. The quality of oats grown in western Canada is attested by the fact that at all the international exhibitions for many years past oats grown in western Canada have been awarded the leading prizes. There is on record oats grown in western Canada that have weighed as much as 48 pounds to the measured bushel, and the Dominion grain inspector is authority for the statement that 85 per cent of the oats examined by him in western Canada weigh more than 42 pounds to the measured bushel. The standard weight for a bushel of oats is 34 pounds.

Samples of these oats weighing upward of 45 pounds to the bushel are on exhibition at the Canadian government information bureau, located in various cities in the United States.—Advertiser.

The SANDMAN STORY

DAHLIAS AND ASTERS

IT WAS getting to be very cold weather, but the Dahlias and Asters growing in the garden by the high stone wall did not seem to mind it.

The leaves had fallen from the trees the night before, and as they rustled past they called to the flowers: "You better go to sleep. Jack Frost gave us a terrible fright last night in his white coat."

The sparrows in the tree over the garden wall looked down and chat-

"WE HAVE BEEN ASLEEP ALL SUMMER."

tered: "You silly flowers! Don't you know it is cold and you will freeze? Go to bed!"

The bare limbs of the trees waved back and forth, crackling in the wind, to warn them that it was getting late, but the Dahlias and the Asters only raised their bright heads and nodded. "What care we for the chill, crisp air?" they said to each other. "We have been asleep all summer. Why should we hurry away, now that we are here?"

The cold wind came that night and told them that winter was on his way and they better go to sleep, and the rain came down to tell them it might be its last visit, for the snow was getting impatient to fall.

The next morning the sun came out and the Dahlias and Asters laughed as they bobbed about. "Who is afraid of snow? We are not; why, we just love the cold, crisp air."

"You flowers better go to sleep," called a squirrel from the top of the garden wall. "Don't you know we had a frost last night and it is late for flowers to be out?"

"We are not afraid of frost or snow," called back the flowers, "and why shouldn't we stay a long time? Why does everyone tell us to go to sleep?"

But that night old North Wind came down from his cold white home and over the garden wall he flew, grumbling and muttering. "Where are they, where are they?" he asked.

And straight to the Dahlias and Asters he flew in a terrible temper. "What is all this I hear about you?" he asked.

"Don't you know it is time you were in bed and asleep? It is Thanksgiving time and the people want snow, and here you are holding back the seasons. Get to bed, all of you, quick!" And then how he did blow and bluster about! The poor Dahlias and Asters hustled into bed and when morning came they were fast asleep under a blanket of snow, and never once did they show their heads until the next year.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

POET'S WORD GOOD ENOUGH

Student Was Absolutely Satisfied Without the Necessity of Seeing Any Proofs.

A good story is going the rounds of Princeton about Prof. Alfred Noyes, the English poet.

Professor Noyes, it is well known, likes very much to read his works aloud to his friends, and at Princeton, with so many young men under him, he is usually able to gratify this liking to the full.

The other day Professor Noyes said to a junior, who had called about an examination:

"Wait a moment. Don't go yet. I want to show you the proofs of my new book of poems."

But the junior made for the door frantically.

"No, no," he said, "I don't need proofs. Your word is enough for me, professor."

Miracle of Ingenuity.

The air turbine of I. T. Nedland, a North Dakota artisan, is less than one-twentieth of an inch in diameter and weighs only one-fifth of a grain troy. It has eight parts, the casing being of gold and the motor of steel. The motor, which has six slots, has a diameter of 0.032 inch; the shaft, 0.007 inch. Mounted on a hollow pedestal the turbine is driven at a high rate of speed by a jet of compressed air entering at the bottom. This seems to be the tiniest of all motors, being smaller than the same maker's electric motor and steam engine, each of which is reputed to be the smallest machine of the kind in the world.

The origin of earthquakes has been traced to two principal causes, the first of which is tectonic, and the second volcanic. The former refers to movements in the earth's crust, known as faults, possibly caused by the shrinking of the interior of the earth by reason of cooling.

Evil.

Evil is what the love of money is the roof of.

The root is the lowest part, of course. There is less unanimity of opinion as to what is the height of evil.

If everything else thrived as well under opposition as evil does, this would be a far different world.

Evil is also what men do that lives after them, if Bill Shakespeare is to be depended on.

Somebody a long time ago labeled a lot of things "evil" and we have stuck to the labels pretty faithfully.

But most of the things they marked "evil" should have been placarded "foolishness."

People who exercise all the intelligence they have do nothing that is really evil.

And they have a fine time, with no big heads or next mornings or other popular brands of hang-over.

Most of the time when we ask, "Is it right?" we could get the answer more suddenly if we said:

"Is it intelligent?"

Many things once labeled evil are not so.

We were brought up to believe that card playing is evil, intrinsically.

Also dancing—gee, whiz! Dancing was the worst thing there was!

Murder was a Sunday school exercise compared with it.

If one plays cards when one should be and could be doing something helpful and necessary, it is wrong.

So would corn hoeing or onion weeding be, if you were neglecting something more important for it.

Ditto dancing.

Although we do believe it wrong for anybody to do it as badly as we do.

A dancing teacher told us so, once. This isn't all we know about evil. But it's all we're going to tell here.

Making Up Time.

Father Time was looking anxiously at his reflection in the mirror.

He gouged at the bits of pigment in the pores of his skin and rubbed viciously at the rouge-marks on his lips and the sooty place in his eyebrows.

BEAUTY CHATS

THE NAILS

IF POSSIBLE every woman should have a professional manicurist go over her nails once in a while, unless she is quite expert at doing them herself. She should also have a professional go over her feet once every few months. The charges for such work are always moderate, and the pain and expense saved later, by the prevention of corns and other troubles is more than worth it. It is like going to a dentist twice a year, to save expensive fillings later.

At home, the nails should receive a little attention each day. The skin should be pushed back with an orange wood stick, to prevent its growth over the nail itself, and any small pieces that collect and harden along the side of the nail should be clipped off. The nails should be kept filed to a small rounded point. Vaseline rubbed into them every night will prevent ridges forming, unless there is a quantity of lime in the blood.

For the regular manure, the nails should be filed to shape and rubbed with cold cream, after the fingers have been held in soapy warm water. Then the loose skin is scraped off with edge of the file, the cuticle cut or pushed back, and all the hard skin cut away from the sides, till the nail appears a perfect oval, set in the finger. Then the bleach is put under the nail. If any is needed, the polish is put on, and the nail is polished with a buffer rubbed with chalk. Then all rouge and powder is washed off gently, and the nail, pink and perfect, receives its final polish by rubbing it against the palm of the hand.

All advertisements must be in this office not later than Tuesday noon to insure publication in the current issue. As we are very busy advertisers will confer a favor by observing the above request.

AMERICAN BOYS ABROAD

The American Boy Scouts who are representing American boyhood at the International Jamboree in London, are maintaining the reputation of their country as good sports and good sportsmen. They have held their own on foreign soil against the best that Great Britain and Europe can send against them.

The Boy Scouts of America has made good as an organization. In ten years it has sprung from nothing to a body of more than 500,000 boys and scout officials. The work is one of building better men from the on-coming generation. Giving, as it does, the out door training which is dear to the heart of every boy, it has met a real need. The success of our boys abroad is one that should gladden the hearts of every American. We are proud of the work of our men and these are the men of a few years hence.

Not only the boys who went on this first great over-seas trip but every boy in Scouting will profit by the trip. Those who went will bring back with them new ideas which will be passed from boy to boy by that mysterious method of communication which has kept alive the games and customs of childhood from one generation to another.

CO-OPERATIVE BUSINESS

It has been said that "Co-operation never failed; all failures of co-operative enterprises have been the result of lack of co-operation." The statement appears to be true on its face, but often, like many other apparent truths, it fails to work out in practice.

We read of the success of co-operative stores in other lands; we hear what profits they have made for their members and how much they have kept down the cost of living, but all such ventures seem to have failed in this country. What is the reason?

Americans are surely no less loyal to their organizations than workmen of other countries. The reason must be sought in some other quarter. To us it appears that the lack lies in poor management. A man is chosen because he is "a good fellow", popular with the other members, rather than because of his knowledge of the business to be conducted. Given the best stock of goods, the best location, and ample capital-without proper management the best business in the world will go on the rocks. And when this lesson is thoroughly learned, co-operative stores may succeed in America. They cannot do so otherwise. Where proper managers have been selected they have succeeded. Improper management invariably meant failure.

To Rescue Drowning Person.

As soon as a drowning man begins to lose his recollection he gradually slackens his hold until he quits altogether. A rescuer should be careful to avoid being grasped, however. The safest method of approach is at the head. Grasp the struggler by the hair, turning him on his back. Then throw yourself on your back and swim, holding the man by his hair, his back to your stomach.

Biblical Information.

The Lookout prints the following information about the Bible: "The Bible contains 3,566,480 letters, 810,637 words, 31,175 verses, 1,189 chapters, 63 books. The longest chapter is Psalm 119, and the shortest is Psalm 117. This is also the middle chapter. The middle verse, however, is Psalm 118:8. The longest name is in Isaiah chapter 8."

Record Piece of Jade.

The largest piece of jade known is a block of this stone which is seven feet long, four feet wide and weighs three tons. It came from South Island, New Zealand, and forms the base for a statue of a Maori chief on exhibition in the Museum of Natural History, New York city.

Beauty and Truth.

It is only through the morning gate of the beautiful that you can penetrate into the realm of knowledge. That which we feel here is as beauty we shall one day know as truth.—Schiller.

Congressman Copley
a Candidate for Re-election

Congressman Ira C. Copley of Aurora, who is a candidate for renomination on the Republican ticket, is now completing his fifth term in Congress, as the representative of the Eleventh congressional district.

The ten years during which he has served in the House of Representatives have been the most stirring that the nation has seen; at least in the last fifty years.

During this time the United States entered the great war, and with the armies of our allies, fought it to a successful conclusion. Congressman Copley voted for the declaration of war and supported every war measure that President Wilson requested from Congress. His platform in 1918, during the war, was the brief, "100 per cent Americanism and win the war."

It has been unfortunate that since 1911, when he entered Congress the Republican party has never been in complete control of the legislative and executive branches of the government. Prior to 1919, Mr. Copley was never in the majority in the House, the Democrats controlling it until the sixty-sixth Congress.

During the past two years the ability of the Eleventh district representative has been recognized to a greater extent in Washington than ever before. He was appointed at the opening of Congress to the ways and means committee, the most important committee in the House. This committee must annually pass upon all revenue legislation. He is fifth ranking member on the committee.

Increased responsibility as a national legislator, however, has not in the least kept Congressman Copley from rendering the same willing and efficient service to his constituents in the district he represents. Whether it was a soldier or a sailor, whose allotment was not settled, or whose pay account overdue, or a widow whose pension was not being paid, a powerful and influential business man or the humblest citizen, Congressman Copley has always looked after their interests in Washington and protected them to the fullest possible extent.

Robt. W. Martin

Candidate for the Republican Nomination for State's Attorney

He was born in and has lived in Will County all of his life. Since 1903 he has been engaged in the practice of law in the city of Joliet.

A careful and impartial investigation of his record as State's Attorney should be made by every voter before casting his ballot for any other candidate for this important office. An inquiry among the Judges of the Courts of Record, County Officials, Supervisors, Justices of the Peace, Highway Commissioners, Town Clerks, and those other persons who have had official business with him will disclose that he has always been energetic, efficient, courteous, fair, and impartial. His ability in handling the many and varied matters of vital interest to the county is the best guarantee that the county's interests will be efficiently safeguarded.

A vote for ROBERT T. MARTIN at the primary on Wednesday, SEPT. 15, 1920 will be a vote for continued efficiency and service in the office of State's Attorney.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

by Nellie Maxwell

"There are sweet surprises awaiting many an humble soul fighting against great odds in the battle of seemingly commonplace life."

What to Do With Bits of Leftovers.

Most housewives have dozens of ways of re-cooking or serving leftover meats, but too many throw away leftover vegetables or serve them again warmed up in the same sauce. Vegetables of most kinds admit of so many ways of cooking that even a spoonful should never be wasted.

We have many number of recipes which tell us how to serve the vegetable in any quantity, but we have to do in this article with small amounts which are beneath the notice of the average cook.

A spoonful of cooked beans washed from the sauce in which they were served added to a potato salad will make that quite another dish; the same is true of peas, corn or other vegetables.

One cupful of stewed corn will make an escalloped dish sufficient for a small family. Butter a baking dish, put in the corn with alternate layers of buttered crumbs; dot each layer with bits of butter if dry crumbs are used, and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Pour over enough milk with a beaten egg added to cover the corn, and bake until firm.

A cupful of corn will provide corn fritters for four people. Add egg, a tablespoonful of milk and flour, to make a drop batter; add half a teaspoonful of baking powder to the flour; fry the size of large oysters in a well-greased frying pan or in deep fat.

There is no economy in combining with leftovers expensive foods such as butter, cream, eggs and milk, to make them pass muster with the family, for the object in using leftovers is to be frugal, and at the same time serve an appetizing dish.

Corn Muffins.

Beat together one cupful of stewed corn drained dry; two egg yolks, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of melted butter; add one cupful of milk, one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat vigorously for five minutes, then fold in the well-beaten whites of two eggs. Half-fill heated muffin irons and bake in a hot oven half an hour.

Cold string beans make an excellent salad. Cook two strips of bacon, cut in dice until brown; add a bit of minced onion, salt and pepper; add a little vinegar and the beans and serve hot.

Add a generous half-cupful or more of grated cheese to a small dish of creamed string beans.

A green pea omelet makes a delicious luncheon dish. Drain a cupful of cooked peas, mash with the back of a spoon and season with salt and pepper. When the omelet is ready to fold, spread over it the peas; fold and finish cooking.

A sauce for lamb chops may be made of the usual white sauce with peas added. Serve as a garnish on the platter of lamb chops.

Scalloped onions are especially good using cold cooked onions, a layer of grated cheese and a cupful of white sauce. Bake covered with buttered crumbs.

DADDIES.

I would rather be the daddy
Of a romping, roughish crew,
Of a bright-eyed chubby liddle
And a little girl or two
Than the monarch of a nation
In his high and lofty seat
Taking empty adoration
From the subjects at his feet.

I would rather own their kisses
As at night to me they run
Than to be the king who misses
All the simpler forms of fun.
When the dreary day is ending
He is dismally alone,
But when my sun is descending
There are joys for me to own.

He may ride to horns and drumming,
I must walk a quiet street,
But when once they see me coming
Then on joyous flying feet
They come racing to me madly
And I catch them with a swing
And I say it proudly, gladly,
That I'm happier than a king.

You may talk of lofty places,
You may boast of pomp and power,
Men may turn their eager faces
To the glory of an hour,
But give me the humble station
With its joys that long survive
For the daddies of the nation
Are the happiest men alive.

SHORTAGE OF LABOR IN GRAIN-GROWING REGIONS STILL ACUTE

Type of Volunteer "Shock Troops" That Helped the Farmer Hold the Line in 1918.

With a shortage of farm labor, as acute this year as in the critical year of 1918, threatening a curtailment of food production on the farms, especially at the trying season of harvesting, the United States department of agriculture is endeavoring to stir up the interest of city men in spending their vacations in the fields, particularly as harvest helpers.

Everyone remembers the now famous "shock troops" of the war years, who went into the harvest fields of Kansas and other large wheat-producing states and lent a hand at gathering in the nation's bread supply. They included men in many walks of life—college students and city men, including bankers, lawyers, doctors, clerks and state and city officials. These veterans, together with other volunteers to swell the ranks, are urged to mobilize again this year to help relieve the present shortage and so aid in combating high costs of food products.

Rendered Good Service in 1918. In making this appeal it is recognized that, at the outset at least, such labor is not as efficient as experienced farm labor, but the excellent results secured in 1918, when city men in large numbers came to the aid of the farmers leave no doubt as to the success of the present canvass if the men respond.

The present labor shortage has arisen in spite of the fact that farm wages are 15 to 25 per cent higher than last year. The situation, unremedied, cannot fail to have an unfavorable effect on production, according to observers of the department, who are watching the condition closely. It will tend, they say, to prevent any reduction in the prices of farm products. While the total acreage undoubtedly has been reduced as a result of the present situation, it is not in so large proportion as the reduction in the labor supply, because the farmers with their families exerted themselves to the utmost to overcome the handicap. Cultivation this year was less intensive than formerly. More land was put into grass and such crops as required a minimum of labor, and the tilled fields consequently suffered.

Grain States Need Help. From many of the harvest centers are coming appeals for help. In some of the big grain-producing states of the West, such as Idaho and Nebraska, the demand for labor for planting the crops and tending them was fairly well met. Harvesting and thrashing, however, means more help, and it is this that the farmers in these areas are worrying about. Help must come from the cities, and it is to arouse the interest of city men and obtain their aid that the department and other agencies of the government and the states are directing their efforts.

Persons who are desirous of responding to the appeal should get in touch with directors of agricultural extension at the colleges in the various states. These directors are prepared to supply the names of county agents having farmers in their respective counties who need farm labor. By this means anyone wishing to help can get in direct communication with the farmer. In the grain-producing states local employment headquarters are established at various centers.

CO-OPERATIVE HOUSES ON BUSINESS LINES

Quite Necessary to Secure the Greatest Results.

Experts of Bureau of Markets Cite Two Instances to Substantiate Assertion That Each Member Must Be on Equal Footing.

To secure the greatest results, co-operative marketing enterprises must be organized and operated along sound business lines, say experts of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, who cite two instances to prove their point.

A sweet potato co-operative marketing association was formed in a New Mexico county that boasted of seven sweet potato warehouses. Six of these warehouses were ignored in organizing the association. The owner of the seventh warehouse was permitted to hold 51 per cent of the stock. With such a monopoly, this gentleman was able to control the business of the association, with the result that all the sweet potatoes were stored in his warehouse, and the other warehousemen faced the threat of being driven out of business. However, the seventh warehouse owner was finally made to see the error of his ways, and through the assistance of the field marketing agent of the United States department of agriculture the association has been reorganized upon a truly co-operative basis.

In the adjoining county were two men who had made a considerable fortune in sweet potatoes, largely through their ability to store their potatoes in their own warehouses. The other sweet potato growers were able barely to eke out a small profit, because they were compelled to sell their produce immediately. The two warehousemen finally were prevailed upon to interest themselves in the formation of a co-operative association. The association was thereby enabled to negotiate a loan from the bank for the construction of a warehouse to take care of the pooled produce. This was such an encouragement to the farmers that it was soon necessary to construct another building because of a considerable increase in crops.

The two leading sweet potato men in this association did not hold a majority of the stock. The organization is a co-operative one in the full meaning of the word. Each member is on an equal footing with every other member. At a recent meeting of the association it was announced that through the combined efforts of the farmers $40,000 in additional profits has been secured, with all the seed sweet potatoes yet to be sold.

FEDERAL STANDARDS PREVENT INEQUALITY

Cause of Considerable Dissatisfaction Removed.

With Passing of Misapprehensions Increasing Sentiment Being Manifested in Favor of Purchase and Sale by Grade.

Misunderstanding as to the application of the federal grain standards and as to the benefits to be derived from the sale of grain upon a grade basis have been the cause of considerable dissatisfaction among producers and country elevator operators, but with the passing of these misapprehensions an ever-increasing sentiment is being manifested in favor of the purchase and sale by grade at country points.

The old system of basing the price at which wheat or other grain was bought from the farmer upon the average quality of the crop in any community or section was totally unfair to the producer of good grain. Under the "mine-run" basis of purchasing grain the producer of good grain received no more for his clean, heavy wheat than did the producer of light weight and otherwise inferior grain. Instead of a premium upon heavy grain, a premium was paid upon inferior products.

The application of federal grain standards is calculated to prevent such inequality, and as experience is being had under the grading system growers are finding that the purpose sought is being accomplished.

DON'T FEED DEAD CARCASSES

Careful Examination Should Be Made to Find Traces of Tuberculosis—May Infect Herd.

Don't feed dead carcasses of cattle to hogs until after a careful autopsy has shown that they are not affected with tuberculosis. You may infect your whole herd by feeding the carcass of a cow that has died after a lingering illness. Such carcasses should be burned or buried deeply.

EGGS IN SEPARATE PACKAGES

Some Markets Favor White-Shell, While Others Favor Brown—Throw Out Defects.

Market white-shelled and brown-shelled eggs in separate packages. Eggs irregular in shape, those which are unusually long or thin-shelled, or which have shells otherwise defective, should be kept by the producer for home use, so that breakage in transit may be reduced as much as possible.

CURIOSITY

CURIOSITY is an effort to secure information which belongs to somebody else.

There is a great deal of information lying around loose which would not look well if printed on the front page, and if it were not for curiosity it could kick around on the four corners for weeks at a time without being picked up and woven into a lawsuit. There is considerable complaint about the activities of curiosity, but it probably keeps more people from helping build good roads for the state than the prickings of conscience.

Curiosity is caused by the nose becoming elongated and prying into other people's business. Many a man his fine. Scores of happy homes have been broken up by the gossip whose curiosity has run over the dam and convinced a credulous wife that she had married a gay Lothario instead of a master bricklayer.

Curiosity which is not fenced in can be cured by reading the parable about the mote and the beam and training the nose to keep on the sidewalk. There would be less beautiful curiosity at work in this country if people would look inside a little oftener and not worry so much about how their neighbors can afford pork tenderloins twice a week. If nobody would go off his own premises when he feels like doing a little promiscuous prying, there would be better feeling and fewer blackballs cast in the lodge.

Last Night's Dreams

—What They Mean

DID YOU DREAM OF CHILDREN?

NEARLY all those who claim to be versed in the affairs of Dreamland declare the dreamchild to be a blessing. There are others—a few old cynics—who seem to look upon dream-children from the viewpoint of a modern landlord of the actual world. According to the majority it is a good omen to hear or see many children laughing and playing about the house-of-dreams. The little ones will bring you success and if you join in their play there is much happiness in store for you; especially if you have no children of your own. To the childless married and to the unmarried the dreamchild brings all the happiness and good fortune which actual children ought to, and frequently do not, bring their parents. Girls are thought to be a luckier omen than boys; but both mean good fortune—and be sure to play with them if possible.

It is not necessary, however, to dream of seeing children in order to

Rewards

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IT IS an Economic truth that most would not be done without Reward, and is strenuous and well directed in proportion to the Reward. So Taussig states in his "Principles of Economics." This condition will undoubtedly always remain true, but if you want to be among those who are this world's Leaders in Thought and Action—

Do a little more than that for which you are Rewarded.

Fortune does more than favor the Brave. It favors the Alert and Industrious—the Thinkers whose Thoughts reach several miles beyond their pay envelopes. Gustavus F. Swift, loyal and enthusiastic in his job as a poor Butcher boy in an insignificant New England town, and Gustavus F. Swift, founder and builder of Swift & Company furnishing the meats and provision for millions, is a case in point. He saw Reward BEYOND his pay envelope.

Do a little more than that for which you are Rewarded.

But remember that Money and Material Achievement is not always Success. Lincoln left next to nothing in Money, but his life was an Evidence in itself of what he felt embodied infinitely more than all Material Reward. No one nor anything is able to give you in Happiness and Contentment what your own Character and Peace of Mind can.

Do a little MORE than that for which you are Rewarded.

be fortunate; though for a generally, all-round good luck dream there should be many of them. To dream of a single child means, if you are married, that one is soon to be born to you. If the child is pretty, great pleasure and considerable good fortune await you. If the child is ugly the omen is not so favorable.

The old grouch on the other hand, say that to dream of talking with a lot of children means losses, and to see a child at its mother's breast, illness, if you are not more careful of your health. However, the lovers of the dream-child are in a great majority.

The MYSTERY of HARTLEY HOUSE

by Clifford S. Raymond

Illustrations by Irwin Myers

PROBABLY no devotee of mystery and detective stories ever has encountered the like of this tale.

The surroundings were undeniably weird and mysterious, and tradition added to their sinister aspect. Inside the house was another baffling mystery, notwithstanding the fact that the owner and family were people of the most delightful personality. The solution is an amazing one.

Story will appear serially in these columns.

Get the Opening Installment!

THIS face may not be as familiar to you as some others. Rehn never ran for office before.

He is thirty-four, has lived in Joliet since he was three. The son of a Joliet stone mason, Rehn early learned to "hew close to the line" and to keep persistently pounding away. He has built up a large law practice by these methods and by rendering real service to his clients.

If the people of Will county vote to hire him as their State's Attorney, he will justify their confidence and earn his salary by the same sort of service.

Most Sensitive Instrument.

The most sensitive instrument yet made is the bolometer, originally invented by Langier, which is used for measuring variations in the radiation of heat. It registers to a millionth of a degree. The heart of it is a platinum wire so thin that it cannot be seen except when a ray of bright light is reflected from it.

"The Vicious Circle."

Most people conclude that this phrase, which we hear so often nowadays, is of recent origin, but Amiel, the Swiss philosopher, who died in 1881, said, "I turn in a vicious circle." There is also evidence that the phrase was in use as long ago as 1792, so we have not even the comfort of a new discovery.

POULTRY

PROFITS IN POULTRY FLOCK

Farmer Should Be Careful to Gather Eggs Regularly and Market Them Promptly.

The marketing of the product, particularly eggs, has an important bearing on the profits of the flock. Under most conditions it is impossible for the farmer to seek a special market for his eggs, but he should be very careful to see that the eggs are gathered regularly and frequently and promptly taken to market. Failure to do this is responsible for the spoiling of a great many eggs.

When the methods of buying are such that payment is made for good eggs only, a plan which is becoming more widespread and bids fair to be compulsory in most states, the farmer will suffer a decided money loss if he does not make it his business to see that all the eggs delivered are fresh and marketable at full value.

One of the greatest causes of spoiled eggs during the hot summer season is the development of chick embryos in fertile eggs, poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture say. This loss is preventable simply by producing infertile eggs. All that is needed to accomplish this is to separate the male birds from the females as soon as the breeding season is over. All the eggs sold will then be infertile and incapable of embryo development.

DISPOSE OF SLACKER FOWLS

Hens, Too Old or Too Lazy to Lay Their Way Should Be Eaten, Canned or Sold.

The slackers are hens too old or too lazy to pay their way, those using their feed for making fat and those that have finished their year's production of eggs and are beginning to molt. The poultryman cannot reasonably expect to maintain a high production if he has many birds of this stamp. Cull them out at once. They should be eaten, canned or sold.

DON'T CHANGE FEEDING PLAN

Various Methods May Be Successful as Conditions Are Different—Make Study of Flock.

If your method of feeding gives good results do not change it just because you read of other methods used by other poultry raisers. Various methods may be successful; conditions are so different that they demand different methods. A poultry raiser must study the conditions of his own flock, their surroundings, the climate, etc.

FOR BETTER EGG PRICES

Produce infertile eggs. Gather twice a day. Keep in a cool place. Market twice a week. Protect eggs from sun on way to market. Feed oyster shell for stronger egg shells. Do not market eggs from stolen nests.

EXERCISE FOR LAYING HENS

Good Way Is to Feed Oats, Wheat and Barley in Litter—Change the Straw Frequently.

One way to furnish exercise for laying hens is to feed oats, wheat and barley in litter. The floor is covered with straw 6 inches deep. In this the grain feed is scattered. The straw is changed frequently as it becomes soiled from droppings. Some of the poultry diseases are spread through droppings.

DOUBLE YARD SYSTEM BEST

While Fowls Are Using One, a Crop of Oats or Rye Is Planted in the Other.

The double yard system is the best for yarded fowls—that is, each pen has the run of a front and back yard, and while they are using one a crop of oats or rye is planted in the other. As soon as the green blades are up three inches the fowls are turned into it and the other yard dug up and planted.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

It is a pleasant thing to reflect upon—that every baby born into the world is a finer one than the last.—Nicholas Nickleby.

WHAT SHALL WE HAVE TO EAT

When there is a cupful or two left of baked or boiled fish, try:

Turban of Fish.—Scald one and one-half cupfuls of milk with one slice of onion, a blade of mace and a sprig of parsley; remove the seasonings. Melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add the same amount of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of cayenne, then add the scalded milk gradually and two well-beaten yolks. Put a layer of fish on a buttered dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper and add a few drops of lemon juice. Cover with sauce, continuing with the fish and sauce, shaping in a pyramid form. Cover with buttered crumbs and brown in a hot oven.

Macaroni and Cheese in the Fireless Cooker.—Boil one cupful of macaroni fifteen minutes, adding one teaspoonful of salt to a quart of boiling water. Rinse, drain and place in a casserole. Fill the dish with milk, stir in two tablespoonfuls of butter long enough to blend it. Add one cupful of grated cheese and sprinkle thickly with paprika. Pack in a cooker between two moderately heated radiators, using one radiator as a cover to the casserole. Bake one and one-half hours. Do not heat the stones too hot or the dish will be baked hard and dry.

Salmon Box.—Line a bread pan slightly buttered with warm, cooked rice well seasoned, cooking it in broth of milk if possible. Skim milk will do nicely. Fill the center with cold-boiled salmon flaked and seasoned with salt, pepper and a slight grating of nutmeg. Cover with rice and steam one hour. Turn out on a hot platter and surround with an egg sauce. The egg sauce is a simple drawn butter sauce to which the beaten yolks of two eggs are added with a teaspoonful of lemon juice.

Fried Egg Plant.—Pare and cut in thin slices. Pile the slices on a platter, sprinkling each slice with salt, cover with a plate and weight. Let stand one hour, drain, rinse each slice in cold water, dip in beaten egg, then in seasoned crumbs and fry until brown.

August brings the snowy lilies, Clad in robes of spotless white, Walking like a queen among them. As she flings them left and right; Lilies pure and lovely crown her, And her dress in every fold Wears the semblance of a lily In its dream of white and gold.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

For the beginning of a dinner a soup of some kind is always in season; hot or cold, they add to the meal.

Corn and Chicken Soup.—Take six cupfuls of chicken broth, add one cupful of corn pulp and half a cupful of cold chicken cut very fine. Season with salt, pepper and celery salt. Simmer half an hour, then add a tablespoonful of butter and half a cupful of milk. Bring to the boiling point and serve. This soup may be thickened with egg yolk, making it more nourishing.

Lamb in Aspic.—Make a highly seasoned soup stock of vegetables, broth or beef extract, using a package of gelatine for each quart of stock. Soak the gelatine and add to the hot stock; stir until dissolved. Rinse a plain mold in cold water and pour in a layer of the aspic jelly, keeping the remainder warm. When the jelly in the mold is congealed but not hard, cover with thin slices of cold roast lamb and sprinkle with mint sauce. Cover with more jelly and repeat when the jelly hardens. Consume until the dish is full, having jelly on top. Set on ice to harden.

Veal Croquettes.—Chop cold cooked veal very fine. Season with salt, pepper, grated onion, paprika and a little tomato catsup. Bind with raw egg, or a very little thick cream sauce. Shape into croquettes, dip in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Raspberry Charlotte.—Take two cupfuls of fresh raspberries, or canned will do, the juice of half a lemon, four ladyfingers, rolled into crumbs, and the whites of four eggs beaten stiff; mix lightly and pour into a buttered baking dish and bake 25 minutes. Serve with a thin custard sauce.

Swiss Eggs.—Spread a stoneware platter with butter and lay on it very thin slices of cheese. Sprinkle with nutmeg and salt, then break over this the enough eggs to serve the family. Pour over a half cupful of cream, sprinkle

TO PROTECT ALUMINUM.

To protect aluminum and aluminum alloys from corrosion, says the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, L. von Grothuss has tried browning the metal electrolytically. By using this method, the aluminum may be bent or rolled without the coating. Aluminum thus treated was immersed in a salt solution for two months without showing the slightest trace of corrosion.—Chemical Round Table.

with salt and bake until the eggs are firm. Serve from the platter.

A commonplace life, we say and we sigh; Yet why do we sigh as we say? The commonplace sun in the commonplace sky Makes up the commonplace day. The moon and the stars are commonplace things, The flower that blooms and the bird that sings; But sad were the world and dark the lot, If the flowers faded and the sun shone not. And God, who sees each separate soul, Out of commonplace lives makes his beautiful whole. —Susan Coolidge.

FOOD FOR THE ILL.

Indigestion, stomach trouble of various kinds as well as intestinal troubles have so many forms and causes that it is never safe to trust one's own ideas in regard to the kind of food one should eat. A physician after diagnosis will give a list of the various foods it is safe to eat; however it is probable that toast which is lightly toasted on the outside, soft and full of moisture inside is unwholesome for the most healthy stomach. Toast should be made of bread at least two days old, cut one-half inch thick and dried for a few moments in the oven to remove any moisture, then while still hot from the oven slowly toasted a golden brown. Too many cooks serve toast by the recipe given by the small boy—"toast bread until black, then scrape it at the kitchen sink."

Eggs, milk and combinations of eggs and milk when carefully prepared in regard to the one who is to eat the dish are foods which will be taken with comfort.

Custards of all kinds, cooked just long enough to be smooth and velvety are not monotonous though served often.

Fried foods of all kinds should be eliminated as they are especially hard to digest.

Fruit juices, jellies, gelatine dishes and sea moss are desserts which may be commonly served in ordinary cases.

Apple Custard.—Take five well-beaten eggs, add a quart of milk and one pint of strained apple sauce. Sweeten and flavor to taste and bake carefully until firm. Set the pan of custard into a pan of hot water to bake.

Within each beating human heart Lie buried out of sight The thoughts that throb like things apart And wait to find the light— From depths unseen the heart's own sod Sends forth its flowers like golden-rod. —Ida Scott Taylor.

SOME GOOD SUMMER SALADS.

In no season of the year are salads as much enjoyed as during the warm weather when the appetite lags and crisp fresh things are most welcome.

Cucumber Jelly.—Cut peeled cucumbers and tomatoes into dice, saving the juice. Season with grated onion, pepper and salt. Dissolve half a package of gelatin in two cupfuls of liquid, add to the vegetable juices, stir until well mixed, cool, cut in cubes and serve in tomato cups with mayonnaise.

String Beans.—Wash the beans and put them to cook with a little bacon fat stirring and cooking for five minutes, then add a very little water, set back where they can simmer, adding a very small amount of water when needed. Season and cook for two hours. Serve hot with curled bacon.

Steamed Radishes.—Cook without peeling, the radishes, and if small, leave whole. Serve in a white sauce, using plenty of seasoning. If boiled, use very little water and reserve it for making the white sauce, so that the nutriment and flavor may be saved.

Corn and Green Peppers.—Cook a medium-sized pepper in sweet fat, then add corn, seasoning and cook until slightly browned. Serve hot.

Icebergs.—Dissolve two cupfuls of sugar in three cupfuls of water (boiling); cool, add three-fourths of a cupful of lemon juice, color leaf green and freeze. Serve in stemmed sherbet glasses. Put a teaspoonful of cream de menthe in each glass, sprinkle with finely chopped nuts, using almonds, filberts, pecans and walnuts in equal proportions. These may be used with the meat course, or between courses, or as a finish to the meal.

Sicilian Sorbet.—Press a can or an equal amount of fresh peaches through a sieve, add one cupful of sugar, two cupfuls of orange juice, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, and when well mixed freeze.

CHILDREN AND BOOKS.

It does the child no harm to make the acquaintance of books which were not written for children. In a home where the great books that have inspired or amused successive generations are accessible an active-minded child is likely at some time to get at them. If we want our children to fall in love with the better kind of books let us provide them with opportunities for meeting such books with out too much formality.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

QUEEN BEE.

"Ah," said Queen Bee, "I do not work, but I lay the eggs, and so I am called the Queen Bee, for all the little eggs are my subjects and all around me do everything they can to help me and to wait on me."

"When I tell you how many eggs a day I lay during the time when I feel in the mood for laying, you will be surprised."

"You are used to hearing of a few eggs laid by hens and a few eggs laid once a year by birds or something like that. But when I'm laying I lay from two to three thousand eggs a day."

"You see, buzz, buzz, I don't like to do anything that is small. I don't care about doing little bits of work. I like to do a lot. That is why I'm a queen, I am an important creature, and not just like all the rest!"

"And I am waited on by my helpers who digest the food, the pollen which I eat."

"I am the only queen working and ruling in my surroundings, and that is another reason why I am called a queen."

"I haven't a lot of other queens about me. I am the only one. I rule over this colony of bees and all the bees do as I wish."

"I am fed royal jelly, a most deliciously sweet food made only and served only to a queen bee who has been brought up in the Queen's royal chambers, or in the Queen bee cell, as it is usually known."

"My workers have better eyesight than I have, and so they go in search of the honey. During the summer I go from one cell to another laying my eggs."

"But I never leave the hive, though I may live to be several years old. Sometimes it is true I go off upon a flight with my mate or with a swarm of bees, but Queen Bee is a home-body."

"Yes, most decidedly."

"If I saw another queen I would fight her, that is the way I am. When I get old and I see a daughter queen take my place that is all right, but while I am strong and young and all that no queen will take my place unless she wins in the battle which we would fight."

"From the time I was an egg until I became a queen was only two days over two weeks. That is the honor shown to one who is to be a queen bee. The other worker bees take longer to become their regular size."

"If I am off with a swarm of bees they will not settle anywhere until I do. The queens are the ones who decide on the homes."

"Yes, the Queen Bee is the one who decides things and I plan where the swarm shall live, where the hive shall be."

"Then I see about the laying of the eggs, and all of my workers wait on me, as I've said."

"And I am given special food which they cannot have, and neither do they look as perfect and finished as I look!"

"But not only am I an interesting creature, but all bees are interesting and the honey we give is good—oh, so good."

"We are great workers and every one has their special work to do."

"We don't go all about saying: 'What shall I do next?' Everything like that is arranged and so it saves time and thought and waste of doing things which some one else could do better."

"We work whether we have enough honey on hand or not. We have the habit of work. We cannot stop. We must keep right on."

"When the day is over and the honey gathering is through for the day our workers attend and care for all that they have gathered throughout the day."

"There is never a wasted moment in a bee's life, and every bee has its purpose. A Queen Bee, I was told to be, and so a Queen Bee I am. I do the work of the Queen Bee, the work I can do best."

"And so do we all, all the bees of this hive and all the bees of every other hive!"

Mortifying Conduct.

"Ralph," said the minister to his son and heir, "I trust you will not misbehave in church this morning, as you did last Sabbath. Such conduct is very mortifying to me."

"But, papa," rejoined the incorrigible Ralph, "don't you teach the people to mortify the flesh?"

Heavy Traffic.

They seldom crowd the roads in northern Minnesota, but on our last tour, when we headed into a tamarack swamp and had to take our top off because of the low-hanging trees, we did feel a trifle uncertain about the route.

"Do many cars travel this road?" we asked some children who happened along.

"Oh, yes," came the proud reply: "lots of 'em. One came last year and one this year, and now you're here, too!"

WAS TO BE MORE YELLING

Safe to Say That Father's Prediction Turned Out to Be Absolutely Correct.

The sweetly peaceful scene in the little sitting room, was suddenly disturbed by a loud yell, and the honored guest sprang wildly from the chair into which he had just sunk, while the daughter of the house felt her face grow pale.

She had had hopes from this visit. Alas, poor girl, were they to be blighted?

But father took the matter—and his small son—firmly in hand. With a graceful apology he removed the bent pin from the chair and the aforesaid small boy from the room.

"Now, look here, Charles," he said sternly, in the back yard, "why did you do it?"

"It—it was an experiment, father!" faltered the lad.

"An experiment!" snorted father. "The only man who has visited your poor sister for years, and you go and drive him away!"

"Well, dad," explained the boy, "he advertises that he is a painless dentist, and I wanted to find out if it was true, and it wasn't. You should have heard him yell!"

"Yes," was the father's grim comment. "And some one else is going to hear you yell now?"

YOUNGSTER MADE WORD GOOD

Though, as It Turned Out, It Was at the Cost of Some Personal Discomfort.

Marshall, who is five, lives in a flat building. He is a real boy and although he has a rear yard and a sand pile in which to play, his mother has more or less trouble keeping him off the streets. A neighbor saw him across the street one morning and the next day called his attention to the fact that he was out of the zone mapped for him. He was one of the busy ones about a vegetable wagon.

"Yes," he said, "I had to get some sings." The next morning he asked his mother for the market basket. He immediately disappeared and soon returned, accompanied by the vegetable man. In the basket were three pounds of potatoes, a box of berries and two cantaloupes. Mother had to settle whether she needed the goods or not. At any rate, Marshall made his word good with the neighbor that he had to get "some sings." When questioned by the same neighbor about his shopping expedition he said: "Yes, and mother spanked me, too."

And Yet It Was Tough!

A woman famous locally for her ducks sold one to Brown, her neighbor. But it proved particularly tough, and as Brown had paid a big price for the bird he called on the vender without delay.

"What do you mean by imposing such a duck upon me, one of your neighbors?" he inquired.

"Why, was there anything wrong with it?"

"Wrong! It wasn't good at all!" "Well, it ought to have been," replied the dame. "It won the first prize at all the poultry shows for 11 years in succession!"

He Kept On.

"Why are you staking out a lot here, my man?"

"Gonna live here."

"But you can't live here. This is the great American desert. It's too dry."

"I can't see that it's any dryer here than anywhere else."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Great Improvement.

"Jim's wife can make a tart answer."

"My wife is a lot better than that, for she can make a pie speak for itself."

If a man itches for fame it probably keeps him scratching.

CONGRESSMAN IRA C. COPLEY
Now Serving His Fifth Term in Congress

Fifth Ranking Member of the Ways and Means Committee, the Most Important of the House.

A Candidate for Renomination Upon the Republican Ticket at the Primaries of September 15th, 1920.

ORDER UNDER THE LAW

With every opportunity given to a majority to change the law.

This is the issue of the forthcoming Congressional Primary Campaign. As the basic principle of all government and the greatest guarantee of human freedom under the American Constitution, it must be maintained.

Upon this principle Congressman Copley, in his sixth Campaign for Congress, will appeal to those citizens who believe in its observance.

THE SERVICE MEN

Who fought the battle of America.

Because Congressman Copley has been their "friend at court." Every fair request that a soldier or sailor ever made has been heeded and all possible aid given. Because he has been outspoken in his support of the adjusted compensation bill and untiring in his efforts to secure its passage.

THE FARMERS

Who as a class are an anchor to the windward in an unsettled world.

Because they know that Congressman Copley will protect every legitimate interest of agriculture. Mr. Copley is a man who knows that the sixty-two per cent of America's population in the cities can not prosper unless the thirty-eight per cent who feed them do.

THE WOMEN

Who should have the vote by primary time.

Because as they say: "He has always been on the right side of national questions." Congressman Copley has always voted for equal suffrage, once when the change of a single vote would have set their cause back many years. His Child Labor Bill introduced in the 63rd Congress was the first of its kind.

THE LABORING MEN

Who believe in a live and let live policy.

Because as an employer Mr. Copley has always been a little more than just. His ten-year Record of representing all his constituents in all fairness will stand the attack of a small and disgruntled minority attempting to kindle class prejudice for their own advantage.

THE BUSINESS MEN

Who desire to see industry and commerce on a stable basis again.

Because Congressman Copley is himself a successful business man. He is pledged to the repeal of cumbersome and restrictive revenue legislation. Because he believes in the American principle of free competition and a just return. America needs a business administration today.

Valuable Discovery.

A California chemist is said to have discovered a process by which platinum is extracted from the ore which also yields gold and silver. The result is that one company which formerly worked the material for gold and silver alone, recovering $40 a ton of material, is now getting $2,400 a ton in gold, silver and platinum.

Help for Ironing Day.

Do not discard old mats and carpets. Cover the mats with the best part of the carpet and make into a pad to stand on while ironing. This will be found very restful to the feet. One of these pads placed at the bottom of the cellar steps, on which to wipe the shoes, will help to keep the steps clean and thus save much labor.

A Three-Century Wink.

Opica, which is placed a few degrees to the right of Mars, and has a distinctly bluish tinge, is so remote that its light takes three and a quarter centuries—325 years—to reach us. Thus the light which we now see is coming from the star left it towards the close of the reign of Queen Elizabeth!
